Art Unit: 3617

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Suzuki et al (4,588,385). Suzuki et al disclose the claimed structure including a water-cooled vertical engine with a crankshaft 38, a camshaft 58, a timing chain 56, a water jacket 137, and a thermostat 159 in the upper part of the engine above the timing chain.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 2 and 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Suzuki et al in view of Doke. Suzuki et al do not disclose a timing chain cover integral with a thermostat cover. Doke teaches a timing chain cover integral with a thermostat cover thereby omitting joints and therefore requiring no fastening member or gasket. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to form the device of Suzuki et al with a timing chain cover integral with a thermostat cover thereby omitting joints and therefore requiring no fastening member or gasket as taught by Doke.

5. Claims 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Suzuki et al in view of Tsunoda. Suzuki et al do not disclose two thermostats. Tsunoda teaches two thermostats 70, 80 with a common drain part 54. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to form the device of Suzuki et al with two thermostats with a common drain part as taught by Tsunoda for improved cooling. Additionally, to form the thermostats in a single chamber would have been an obvious choice of engineering design to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made because it would simplify the design, be less prone to leaks, and be easier to install.

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Takahashi et al show a cooling system. Kawasaki et al show a cooling apparatus.
